Art Unit: 3744

1. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

2. Claims 1-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. Claim 1 recites in the last two lines that the compressor and fan are driven by a low voltage electric motor. However, the specification at page 5, lines 3-8 states that separate motors are used for the compressor and fan. Thus, claim 1 is considered to be indefinite.

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 1 and 4-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over U.S. Patent No. 4,237,877 to Boehler in view of U.S. Patent No. 6,116,037 to Burnett. Boehler discloses an air supply system for a driver of a vehicle comprising an air conditioning system 19 and a fan 1 to draw air through the system 19 to supply cool air directly to the driver. However, Boehler does not disclose that the system 19 includes a compressor, condenser, and evaporator. Burnett teaches an air conditioner system which includes the compressor, condenser, and evaporator powered by a 12 volt battery. Thus, it would be obvious to substitute, for the air conditioning system 19 of Boehler, an air conditioning system which includes a compressor, condenser, and evaporator driven by a small voltage motor, in view of Burnett, to yield the predictable result of providing a small A/C system that does not take up much space. The use of a data logger to monitor the humidity and temperature in the vehicle is considered to be a well known expedient to one of ordinary skill in the art. Likewise, the use of a reversing valve in a heat pump type A/C system is considered to be well known to one of ordinary skill in the refrigeration art.

5. Claims 2 and 3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Boehler in view of Burnett as applied to claim 1 above, and further in view of U.S. Patent No. 5,350,444 to Gould et al. Boehler as modified above by Burnett discloses the claimed invention except for the carbon monoxide filter. Gould et al teaches an air filter for a vehicle which removes dangerous gases such as carbon monoxide. Thus, it would be obvious to provide the air supply system of Boehler as modified by Burnett with an air filter, in view of Gould et al, to yield the predictable result of removing dangerous gases such as carbon monoxide.

6. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
